

Digital Archive Intern

Virunga National Park is a UNESCO World Heritage Site in the eastern Democratic Republic of Congo, on the border of Uganda and Rwanda. Virunga is Africa's oldest national park, the continent's most biologically diverse protected area, and home to about a quarter of the world's critically endangered mountain gorillas.

Virunga National Park is seeking a Digital Archive Intern to help improve our new digital photo archive system. S/he has a strong interest in historical and contemporary photography, photojournalism, digital archiving and preservation as well as a utilization of photography in marketing and communications.

SPECIFIC ACTIVITIES:

- Organize and sort large collection of photos.
- Use aesthetic sense to assess which photos should be archived.
- Tag photographs in library according to subject, location, date and photographer.
- Work closely with communications team and Virunga counterparts.

REQUIREMENTS:

- Student with communications, photography, design or historical archiving background or interest.
- Excellent research, data collection and analysis skills.
- Excellent organizational skills.
- Must be willing to do administrative tasks.

If interested, please contact sarah@virunga.org with your resume.
